2. TODAY'S MARKET-MOVING NEWS

Trump Reinstates Iran / Strait of Hormuz Blockade

President Trump announced via social media Monday that the U.S. would reinstate its blockade on Iranian shipping through the Strait of Hormuz. CENTCOM had carried out strikes on Iranian targets over the weekend. Iran claimed it had closed the strait; maritime traffic fell 52% week-on-week. The U.S. Treasury warned that paying Iran for passage constitutes sanctions violations.

SK Hynix Plunges 15% in Seoul, Triggers Kospi Circuit Breaker

SK Hynix hit its largest one-day decline in two decades (-15%) after its Nasdaq ADR debut disappointed (+12% in U.S. debut Friday → -7.9% ADR Monday) amid earnings forecast downgrades and geopolitical risk-off. Samsung Electronics fell 10%. South Korea's Kospi dropped 9%, triggering a 20-minute circuit breaker — the country's seventh trading halt of 2026.

Meta AI Infrastructure: Meta Compute + Iris Chip

Meta continued to gain on AI monetization news: its new cloud unit (Meta Compute) will sell AI compute and model access to third parties, directly competing with AWS, Azure and GCP. The custom Iris chip is entering production in September. META surged 6%+, adding materially to Nasdaq cap-weight. EPS beat estimates by 57% in Q1; Q2 revenue guided to $58-61B.

Q2 Earnings Season Kickoff

Financials rose 0.65% — the second-best sector — as investors positioned ahead of Tuesday's Big Bank earnings (JPMorgan, Citigroup, Wells Fargo, Bank of America, Goldman Sachs). Sector consensus expects +12.5% EPS and +8.1% revenue in Q2. Options markets price 4.4%-6.0% moves in individual names.

Utilities Outperform; Defensive Rotation

Utilities was the best S&P; 500 sector at +0.68%, reflecting defensive rotation as geopolitical risks escalated. Rate-sensitive sectors benefited as oil-driven inflation fears kept safe-haven flows elevated.

3. NEWS → TODAY'S MOVES

SPY -0.79% / QQQ -1.55%: The divergence between SPY and QQQ reveals today's narrative clearly. QQQ underperformed by ~76 bps because it carries heavy weight in mega-cap tech and semiconductors — sectors hardest hit by the SK Hynix shock and broader memory/chip de-rating. SPY's shallower decline was cushioned by its larger share of Financials and Energy (both up), as well as non-tech Industrials.

Driver	Direction	SPY Impact	QQQ Impact	Mechanism
Iran/Hormuz Blockade	Negative (broad)	-0.4%	-0.3%	Risk-off; growth scare from oil inflation
Oil +9.4%	Mixed	+0.15%	Energy Sector +3% (helps SPY) vs cost headwind for rest of market
SK Hynix -15%/Kospi	Negative, Tech	-0.2%	-0.6%	Semis sell-off globally; Korean ADR arbitrage contagion
META +6%	Positive, Tech	+0.1%	+0.15%	META is top-5 QQQ holding; Nasdaq cap-weight boost
Financials +0.65%	Positive	+0.15%	-	Earnings anticipation; higher rates = wider NIM
Utilities +0.68%	Defensive	+0.05%	-	Geopolitical flight to safety

Net result: broad geopolitical risk and semiconductor sector damage outweighed support from Energy and Financials. QQQ's heavier Nasdaq-100 semiconductor exposure (SK Hynix ADR, Micron, AMD, NVDA all pressured) amplified its underperformance vs SPY.

4. TOP 10 MOVERS — DAILY / WEEKLY / MONTHLY

Daily Top Gainers (July 13)

#	Ticker	Name	% Change	Sector	Driver
1	META	Meta Platforms	+6.0%	Comm Svc	Meta Compute AI cloud + Iris chip
2	PSX	Phillips 66	+3.46%	Energy	Oil surge; Iran blockade
3	COP	ConocoPhillips	+3.04%	Energy	WTI crude +9.4%
4	EOG	EOG Resources	+2.93%	Energy	WTI crude +9.4%
5	XOM	ExxonMobil	+2.7%	Energy	Oil rally; XLE top holding
6	CVX	Chevron	+2.5%	Energy	Oil rally; XLE top holding
7	WY	Weyerhaeuser	+2.3%	Real Estate	Defensive rotation
8	SBAC	SBA Communications	+2.1%	Real Estate	Defensive/utility-like

9	JPM	JPMorgan Chase	+1.8%	Financials	Earnings anticipation
10	GS	Goldman Sachs	+1.5%	Financials	Earnings anticipation

Daily Gainers Sector Trend: Energy dominated today's leaders with 5 of top 10 slots as oil's 9.4% surge (Iran blockade/Hormuz crisis) directly boosted E&P; and refining names. Defensive Real Estate and Financials also feature as investors rotated away from tech/semis.

Daily Top Losers (July 13)

#	Ticker	Name	% Change	Sector	Driver
1	MRNA	Moderna	-7.3%	Healthcare	Pipeline setback / rotation
2	CRWD	CrowdStrike	-6.5%	Technology	Risk-off tech sell; semis contagion
3	DDOG	Datadog	-5.9%	Technology	High-multiple growth sell-off
4	MU	Micron	-5.4%	Technology	SK Hynix crash; memory contagion
5	WDC	Western Digital	-5.2%	Technology	Memory sector rout
6	SNDK	SanDisk	-5.0%	Technology	Memory sector rout
7	AMD	AMD	-4.1%	Technology	Semi sell-off; risk-off
8	NVDA	Nvidia	-3.8%	Technology	Semi sector pressure
9	INTC	Intel	-3.5%	Technology	Memory/semi contagion
10	AXON	Axon Enterprise	-3.2%	Technology	High-multiple de-rating

Daily Losers Sector Trend: Technology/Semiconductors dominated the losing side with 8 of 10 slots. SK Hynix's 15% Seoul crash created a memory-sector panic that spread globally. High-multiple growth tech also sold off as geopolitical risk raised cost-of-capital concerns.

Weekly Top Gainers (July 7-13)

#	Ticker	Name	~Wk %	Sector	Notes
1	META	Meta Platforms	+12%+	Comm/Beta	Meta Compute launch, Iris chip, AI monetization surge
2	ANET	Arista Networks	+8.1%	Technology	AI networking demand; hyperscaler capex
3	WDC	Western Digital	+6.5%	Technology	Memory upswing earlier in week before SK Hynix shock
4	TSLA	Tesla	+5.9%	Cons Discr	Delivery/autonomy optimism
5	XOM	ExxonMobil	+5.4%	Energy	Iran tensions building all week
6	COP	ConocoPhillips	+5.0%	Energy	Oil momentum
7	PSX	Phillips 66	+4.8%	Energy	Refining margins + oil
8	JPM	JPMorgan	+3.9%	Financials	Big Bank earnings setup

9	GS	Goldman Sachs	+3.5%	Financials	Trading revenue optimism
10	SBAC	SBA Communications	+3.0%	Real Estate	Rate stabilization tailwind

Weekly Gainers Sector Trend: Energy (Iran/Hormuz crisis building all week) and Financials (earnings setup) bookended the week's winners. Meta's AI monetization story powered Comm Services. Tech AI infra (Arista) also benefited from AI capex demand.

Weekly Top Losers (July 7–13)

#	Ticker	Name	~Wk %	Sector	Notes
1	MRNA	Moderna	–11%	Healthcare	Pipeline/commercial concerns
2	ORLY	O'Reilly Auto	–8.5%	Cons Discr	Consumer spending slowdown concerns
3	AZO	AutoZone	–7.9%	Cons Discr	Auto parts demand softness
4	GPN	Global Payments	–7.5%	Financials	Fintech competitive pressure
5	ARE	Alexandria RE	–6.8%	Real Estate	Rate/office REIT pressure
6	CRWD	CrowdStrike	–6.5%	Technology	Risk-off + competition fears
7	DDOG	Datadog	–6.0%	Technology	High-multiple compression
8	MU	Micron	–5.8%	Technology	Memory sector concern
9	SW	Smurfit WestRock	–5.5%	Materials	Packaging demand weakness
10	AMCR	Amcor	–5.0%	Materials	Packaging/consumer staples drag

Weekly Losers Sector Trend: Consumer Discretionary (auto parts – inflation and discretionary spending concerns), Healthcare (biotech pipeline), and high-multiple Technology are clustered on the losing side. Materials also appeared weak on packaging demand.

Monthly Top Gainers (June 13 – July 13)

#	Ticker	Name	~Mo %	Sector	Notes
1	XOM	ExxonMobil	+18%	Energy	Iran crisis oil surge; YTD leader sector
2	CVX	Chevron	+15%	Energy	Oil price surge
3	COP	ConocoPhillips	+14%	Energy	E&P leverage to oil
4	META	Meta Platforms	+13%	Comm Svc	AI monetization story; Meta Compute
5	PSX	Phillips 66	+12%	Energy	Refining margin expansion
6	EOG	EOG Resources	+11%	Energy	Oil rally leverage
7	AVGO	Broadcom	+9%	Technology	AI chip demand; custom silicon
8	ANET	Arista Networks	+8%	Technology	AI networking demand
9	JPM	JPMorgan	+7%	Financials	NIM expansion; earnings anticipation

10	NEE	NextEra Energy	+6%	Utilities	Rate stabilization; data center power
----	-----	----------------	-----	-----------	---------------------------------------

Monthly Gainers Sector Trend: Energy dominates the 30-day winners with 5 of top 10 positions as the US-Iran Hormuz standoff escalated through June into July. Oil's move rewarded E&P; and refining pure-plays. Technology AI-infra (Broadcom, Arista) and AI-adjacent Communications (Meta) are the second cluster.

Monthly Top Losers (June 13 – July 13)

#	Ticker	Name	~Mo %	Sector	Notes
1	FDXF	FedEx Freight	–20.7%	Industrials	Freight volume weakness; oil cost
2	INTU	Intuit	–15%	Technology	AI disruption fears; tax/finance software
3	MU	Micron	–13%	Technology	Memory oversupply; SK Hynix shock
4	MRNA	Moderna	–12%	Healthcare	Pipeline setbacks; commercial miss
5	ACN	Accenture	–11%	Technology	Services demand slowdown; AI displacement
6	ORLY	O'Reilly Auto	–10%	Cons Disc	Consumer squeeze; auto spending softness
7	AZO	AutoZone	–9.5%	Cons Discr	Same theme as ORLY
8	GPN	Global Payments	–9%	Financials	Fintech competition; margin pressure
9	DDOG	Datadog	–8.5%	Technology	Multiple compression; competition
10	SW	Smurfit WestRock	–8%	Materials	Packaging demand weakness; costs

Monthly Losers Sector Trend: The 30-day losers tell a story of AI displacement (Intuit, Accenture — services threatened by LLMs), freight cost pressure (FedEx Freight — oil-driven), consumer discretionary squeeze (O'Reilly, AutoZone), and memory-chip cycle concern (Micron). Biotech/pharma pipeline risk (Moderna) rounds out the picture.

5. NEXT-DAY SCENARIOS — TUESDAY JULY 14

Four major catalysts converge on Tuesday. The CPI print lands at 8:30 AM, Big Bank earnings hit before open, Fed Chair Warsh testifies at 10 AM, and the Iran/Hormuz situation will continue as background geopolitical risk.

CATALYST 1: June CPI — 8:30 AM ET

Consensus: Headline –0.1% MoM → ~3.9% YoY (from 4.2%). Core +0.2% MoM → ~3.0% YoY (from 2.9%). Core has been accelerating 3 months straight (2.6% → 2.8% → 2.9%). July 29 FOMC rate decision is directly informed by this print. Oil's +9.4% today adds uncertainty: energy won't hit June CPI (which covers June prices) but signals risk for future months.

- IF headline comes in at –0.2%+ MoM / core ≤2.8% YoY (DOVISH BEAT): SPY +0.8-1.2%, QQQ +1.0-1.5%. Rate cut probability for July 29 FOMC surges. Growth/tech rally (QQQ outperforms). Treasury yields fall 8-12 bps. Dollar weakens. Mechanism: lower rates = higher discount rate relief for long-duration tech assets; SPY also benefits broadly but less so.
- IF headline at –0.1% / core at 2.9-3.0% (IN-LINE): Muted reaction: SPY ±0.3%, QQQ ±0.4%. No FOMC repricing. Market focus shifts to bank earnings and Warsh testimony. Iran premium stays; Energy holds gains.
- IF headline flat or +0.1% MoM / core >3.0% YoY (HAWKISH MISS): SPY –1.0-1.5%, QQQ –1.5-2.0%. Rate cut odds collapse; 'higher for longer' reprices the entire yield curve. Growth/tech worst hit. Banks could also re-rate on deposit cost fears. Mechanism: oil-driven inflation surprises are a tail risk — oil is up 9.4% intraday today but June CPI is a lagged measure.

CATALYST 2: Big Bank Q2 Earnings (JPM, C, WFC, BAC, GS) — Pre-Market

All five report before open. Sector consensus: +12.5% EPS, +8.1% revenue. Options price 4.4-6.0% moves per stock. NIM (net interest margin) is the critical metric given the uncertain Fed path. Investment banking, trading revenues, and loan loss provisions (geopolitical risk could raise credit spreads) are key line items to watch.

- IF beats across the board with strong NIM / raised guidance (BULL BEAT): Financials +2-3%; SPY +0.5-0.8%, QQQ neutral-to-mild positive. Mechanism: financials are ~13% of SPY but less represented in QQQ. Strong NIM implies higher-for-longer benefiting banks. Could partially offset CPI hawkish risk on SPY.
- IF mixed results — some beats, some misses, cautious NIM guidance (IN-LINE): Financials +0.5-1%; SPY +0.2%. Focus shifts to quality of earnings. Loan loss reserves vs. provision commentary on Iran/geopolitical credit risk watched closely.
- IF misses on NIM compression or elevated credit provisions (BEAR MISS): Financials -2-4%; SPY -0.5-0.8%. NIM pressure would signal deposit costs rising faster than loan yields. Credit provision surprises would raise recession fears. QQQ relatively insulated but overall risk-off.

CATALYST 3: Fed Chair Warsh Congressional Testimony — 10 AM ET

First congressional testimony for Warsh since being sworn in May 22. Market will parse every word on: (1) the July 29 FOMC rate path, (2) reaction to oil-driven inflation from Hormuz crisis, (3) whether he sees the Iran situation as a growth or inflation shock. Warsh has historically been hawkish; his new-Chair credibility-building could lean toward emphasizing inflation vigilance.

- IF Warsh signals comfort with current rates / hints at cuts later (DOVISH): SPY +0.5-0.8%, QQQ +0.8-1.2%. Mechanism: dovish Fed + low rates = multiple expansion for growth assets. Tech/QQQ re-rates strongly if both CPI and Warsh are dovish.
- IF Warsh strikes neutral tone — data-dependent, no pre-commitment (NEUTRAL): Market reaction muted. Attention returns to CPI/bank earnings already in. Oil/Iran continues as the dominant macro narrative.
- IF Warsh emphasizes inflation risks from oil shock / signals no near-term cuts (HAWKISH): SPY -0.5-0.8%, QQQ -1.0-1.5%. Mechanism: market was pricing some probability of July 29 cut; removing that compresses P/E multiples, especially in growth/tech. Bonds sell off, dollar strengthens, emerging markets pressured.

CATALYST 4: Iran/Hormuz Crisis — Ongoing

Background risk that can gap markets at any point. Military situation remains fluid — US CENTCOM strikes, Iranian Revolutionary Guard attacks on Kuwait/Bahrain bases. 52% drop in strait traffic. IMO rejected Trump's 20% toll demand. Watch for: ceasefire signals, military escalation, allied reactions (EU/UK), or Iranian closure confirmation.

- IF ceasefire/de-escalation signal emerges: Oil -5-8%, Energy -3-5%; SPY +0.5%, QQQ +0.6%. Risk-on. Airlines, transports, consumer discretionary bounce. Energy gives back gains quickly.
- IF further military escalation / confirmed strait closure: Oil +5-10% more; SPY -1.5-2.5%, QQQ -1.5-2.0%. Severe risk-off. Oil at $85-90 would be stagflationary — bad for both growth (earnings) and monetary policy (inflation). Energy the only safe harbor.
